I am a portrait photographer and retoucher based in Brighton and Hove.

Since June 2014 I've been busy building my portfolio of photography work - from portraits and actors headshots, to conceptual personal work to showcase on my website.

I first got involved in photography aged 17, shooting on 35mm and medium format film and developing the prints by hand in college darkrooms; and I have since only dabbled in portrait photography. Then in early 2014, aged 34, I bought myself a Canon 6D camera; a purchase which has since reignited my passion for portrait photography enough to turn it into a fully-fledged career.

Though I have never worked as a photography assistant, I have nevertheless cut my teeth working with various models - male and female - as well as makeup artists on personal shoots - all on location.

Personal Attributes

I'm a very active type; a fast learner and good at thinking on my feet. I always like to build a good strong rapport with models and other team members throughout a shoot. And I'm a very efficient communicator in helping making sure the end vision is achieved to it's absolute fullest.

Skills and Experience

Natural light shooting; reflectors; strobe (mainly Canon 430EXII speedlite, used remotely); location shooting; Lightroom, Capture One and Photoshop; tethered capture shooting; Canon 6D and Phase One IQ250.
